

The chill of early morning envelops the cove. Intermittent sunlight chases the drifting ground fog, exposing the blues of the sea, the browns of sand and rock. A few yards off-shore sea lions bark and roll over to bask in the warming sun while seagulls wheel, screaming overhead.

As day progresses, La Jollans come to their beach, to walk along the shore and stare at the sea. Children dance at the cold ocean edge, then warm themselves by standing in tidepools, gazing at the myriad sea creatures trapped there.

At noontime, business people come from town to sit on the grassy-topped cliffs for a lunch of sun and sandwiches. Here and there, artists set up easels and paint the small, quiet cove in its changes of light and water.

Farther out, in the rougher Pacific, whales blow streams of water high in the air as they make their yearly pilgrimage from Alaska. Sandpipers skip along the water's edge, playing games with the waves then are chased away by children on their way from school. Racing along the minute beach, the kids scramble up the path to cliff top, rolling and pommeling one another.

Just before twilight, the sea becomes calmer and its blues deepen toward gray. Seabirds congregate to make ready for night. A lone person stands above the cove and watches the California sky turn golden, then blaze into fire tones of red and orange. Day draws to a close at La Jolla Cove.

HELEN HENNESSY'S BOUTIQUE

AFTER A SHOWING of his collection at The House of Martha, Italian designer Valentino talks with Martha and her daughter, Lynn Manulis.

If shopping for clothes sometimes tires you, as it does me, there's a reason. We obviously don't have enough money to do the thing the right way. It can, I learned, be a pampering, relaxing experience.

There's no need to fight mobs in crowded department stores or to try vainly to reach the tuned-off ears of disinterested clerks. The Duchess of Windsor doesn't. Nor do Jacqueline Kennedy, Mrs. Winston Guest or Princess Lee Radziwell. When they're not at the designer's, they go to specialty shops like Martha, Inc.

After spending an afternoon with Martha and her daughter, Lynn, at Martha's Park Avenue salon I don't know how I'll ever again face Macy's.

Imagine soft chairs and sofas in which to sink your tired body, soft carpeting to cushion your tired feet and soft lighting to make you look your best.

As well as Martha's own creations, there are Norells to the right of you, Galitzines to the left, Trigeres here, Valentinos there—an aura of courtesy and charm and, personal attention you haven't had since your mother dressed you for your first party.

It's not enough to know how the other half LIVES. Until you learn how they SHOP you'll never have the complete picture of what money can mean to a girl.

Orbach's sells copies of Paris originals. Martha sells the originals.

If you overhear the proprietor of your neighborhood dress shop say "Yes, Norman," on the phone, you can bet it's her brother-in-law or the stock boy on the other end. At Martha's you can be sure it's Norell.

And when Martha sponsors fashion shows for charity as she does frequently, the designer shows up in person to present his collection. This time it's Valentino from Italy showing his spring and summer collection at New York's St. Regis Roof at a cocktail dance sponsored by Martha for the Committee to Rescue Italian Art.

A native New Yorker, Martha Phillips' first exposure to fashion was through her father, a ladies' tailor. (If one could choose one's father's occupation, that would be a good choice. Trigeres started that way, too.)

Martha studied at the Parsons School of Design and modeled for the late Maurice Rentner. She began what is now a multimillion dollar business (she has five shops in New York and Florida) in a

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bittel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!
This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help Us! it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush off.

SEND YOUR SKULL, LITTLE GIRL
Dear Helen: I am a mature, sensible girl of almost 14. My steady boy friend is really cute. He's 15. The other night my folks jumped all over me because they said we were getting too serious. I had to give back his ring, jacket, jersey, Id bracelet and his football on a chain.

He said we should "get back" at them. He asked me to elope with him to Oklahoma. We'd catch a train.

I believe in young marriages and know this is not puppy love. I know he would be able to support me, as he has had jobs before.

The more I think of it the more I am for it. It would teach my parents a lesson. What else can we do?—D. N. A.

Dear D: You can pack some sense in your romance-saturated little skull, that's what!

At your ages, and without parental consent, you couldn't get married anywhere in the United States. A boy of 15 can't find adequate work to support a wife (even if he could get one).

You'd end up broke, stranded, hunted by the police, unwed and possibly pregnant—which is a whole of a price to pay for "getting even."

Get smart, little girl, and grow down to age -14.—H.

Dear Helen: I am going steadily with a boy of 17. The problem is, my moral standards are considerably higher than his. He compares a speedometer with how far a girl will go. He says he would not want a girl over 75 miles per hour, but 60 mph is about right. This includes the policy of necking and petting, which I will not allow.

He classified me at about 45 or 50 miles per hour. He says under 30 mph girls are "prudes."

My question: how do I keep my 50 mph standards if I have a 60 mph boyfriend? He's very persuasive. I'm afraid he'll find another girl who he can like mentally as well as me but who will suit him better by being freer.

The other night we argued about this for two-and-one-half hours, and he almost convinced me.—50 mph.

Dear 50: Don't argue. Simply say "45-50 or bust up!"

You may lose him, but you'll lose a lot more if you go beyond the speed limits. . . and him too, when he decides you're a little "cheape" who can be persuaded by his smooth line.

P. S. He wouldn't stop at 60 mph, and he knows it!—H.

Dear Helen: My friend and I are both 14. We protest about the type of movies being shown these days.

They are either too babyish or too sexy. Why can't they have some in-between movies for us in-betweeners? There are a lot of us, you know.—TOO YOUNG YET TOO OLD

Dear TYTO: If enough of you in-betweeners would protest loud enough — via letters to movie producers and distributors—you might get action. How about it? —H.

If you give a man a hand-out, you establish a chain of dependence and lack of self-respect that won't be broken easily.

MOVED UP while his father steps down is William Ramsey Clark, 39, native of Dallas, Tex., who was named to be the new attorney general by President Lyndon Johnson. Clark's father, Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark announced he would step down from his post to avoid suspicion of a conflict of interest between the two offices. Ramsey Clark, as he prefers to be called, has been acting attorney general since Nicholas Katzenbach left the attorney general spot to become undersecretary of state.

"O, Come Let Us Sing Unto The Lord," For
There is No Variableness in God's Cause, Nor In His Justice, Then,
Come Let Us Go To Church

He Always Heals

Change Works Its Corrosion
Upon Us As We Approach
Our Rendezvous With Death
But, We Are Under Sentence To Honor God, To Ever Support His Church

The doctor has been summoned and with precision instruments he begins the delicate examination. With perfect control of muscle he can inject his needle without pain.

Just so is The Great Physician marvelously skilled.
His very word is sharper than a two-edged sword. It is sharper than the doctor's keenest needle. Yet He never harms... never hurts... always helps... always heals. He can perform for you the most delicate operation, IF you will let Him.
He can penetrate your life with healing cleansing power... give you the change that makes you want to go to church. Why not start this very week?

You In The Church
The Church is You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs
the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker and attend services regularly.

Seek Ye First The Kingdom of God
And His Righteousness;
And All These Things Shall Be Added Unto You.

You Can Do This Best Through Regular Worship At Church. Our Ministers and These Sponsoring Firms Urge You To Attend Your Church Regularly.

Pro Point Fixing Is Being Probed
NEW YORK (AP) — Officials of the National Football League and the Nassau County district attorney are investigating reports of point fixing in the league last fall, the New York Post said Thursday.

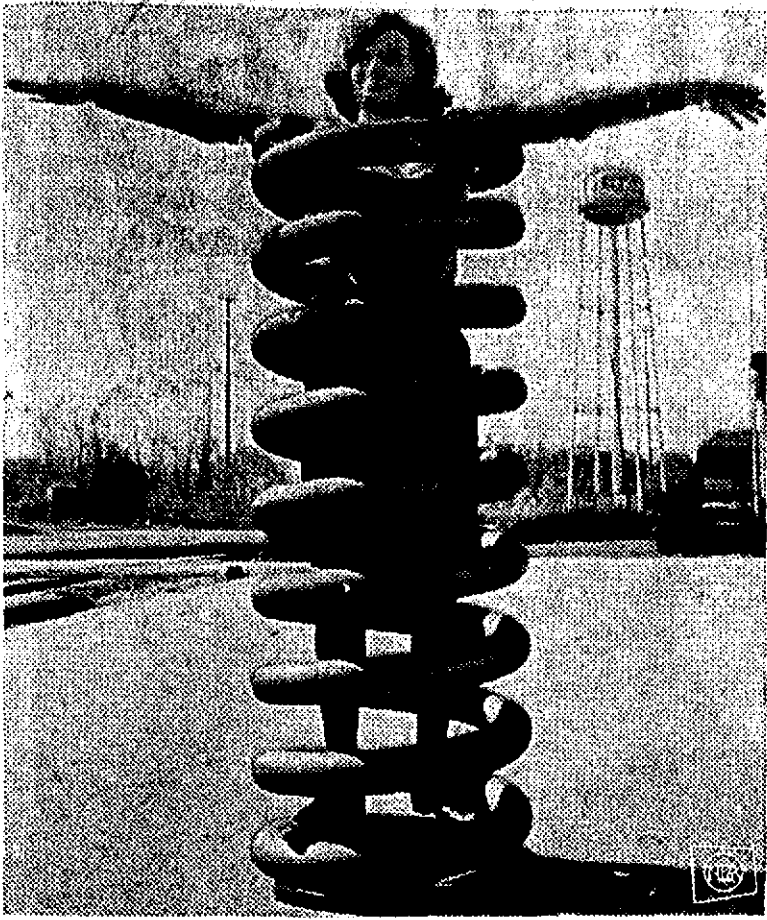

The newspaper reported William G. Hundley, a special assistant to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, and Dist. Atty. William Cahn met Wednesday and discussed "reports that points in at least 19 NFL games last fall were rigged."

A spokesman for Cahn's office confirmed that Cahn and Hundley met, but called it only a "general exchange of information."

Rozelle was unavailable for comment, but an NFL spokesman said it is routine for Hundley to converse with investigative officers in various levels of government.

Last November, Rozelle confirmed reports that Hundley was conducting a general investigation of continuing rumors in the American Football League, but declined to give details.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH
Knowledge of Your Health Problems Helps Dentist
By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S. Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If you have a history of illness that may affect your status as a so-called "normal" dental patient, you must make this known to your dentist. For your best protection your dentist should know if you've had a cardiovascular problem, debilitating disease, epilepsy, etc., and what drugs you regularly take or have taken just prior to your dental visit.

Heart problems are especially important and require special attention. For instance, if you have an arrhythmic heart and have had a recent dramatic episode, it might be wise not to undergo extensive dentistry. If some dentistry is necessary but presents an office risk, it should be done in a hospital where emergencies can be dealt with easier. If "novocain" is used it should NOT contain epinephrine.

If you've had a heart blockage any time in the past, it's usually safe to have novocain with epinephrine. If administered properly this type of anesthetic can be used with minimum risk. Angina patients can also have novocain with epinephrine.

Epinephrine is a vasoconstrictor and is combined with novocain to give prolonged anesthesia. But it's also a heart stimulant and, while it can be safely used in "normal" patients, it must be used with caution in some cases.

Many patients warn their dentists that they are allergic to novocain but most authorities say this is not so. They admit that some people have a reaction to novocain injections but this is due to blood level of anesthetic which is influenced by amount, rapidity and site of injection.

What is called allergic reaction is probably apprehension. This problem can be minimized by premedication with tranquilizers.

Novocain injections are simple, harmless and practically painless these days because of use of disposable needles which are thin and sharp so you don't feel them entering the gums, simplified techniques, more potent anesthetics requiring much less solution to give the desired effect, and better understanding of possible side effects and what to do about them.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald & James Jacoby Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

What would you do with the North hand after the bidding has gone one spade by East, two hearts by your partner and three spades by West?

You are pretty sure that your partner can make six hearts. In fact you expect that he will make seven if a spade is opened. Your problem is to figure out how you can persuade the opponents to let him play the heart slam.

If you have a well-established reputation as a deceptive bidder you might jump right to six hearts. East will say to himself, "Good old North has jumped right to six hearts. If he thought his partner could make that contract, he would never make such an obvious bid. Therefore North is just bidding to get me up to six spades. I will double and show him he can't fool me."

If you haven't such a reputation this is a good hand to use to establish one. You simply bid four hearts. You might even pass but the trouble with that bid is that your opponents may not be playing forcing jump raises and the bidding might die at three spades.

What do you do with the East hand after North's four heart bid? You may decide to slow play the hand and just bid four spades or you may decide to try for a slam by the Blackwood route. When this hand was played at the Regency Whist Club in New York the East player used Blackwood. When West showed no aces, East signed off at five spades.

Needless to say, North went to six hearts and East doubled, never suspecting that he had fallen into a trap. Of course, he learned about the trap when he saw dummy, but it was too late then.

Bobcats Win Triangular Track Meet

By RALPH ROUNTON

Scoring 22 firsts in the 27 events held, the Hope Junior and Senior track teams raced to easy victories in a triangular meet here yesterday.

Some very good times were posted as the local track program continues to gain in stature. The future looks bright, also, as the powerful junior team shows great promise.

A few of the better times could be some of the better ones in the state. Alan Phillips ran a 2:05.3 in the 880 yard run, which is an outstanding time at this stage of the season. Buzz Andrews also had a good time, winning the 120 high hurdles in a very respectable time of 15.0. The Bobcat 880 yard relay team walked away with a good time of 1:36.2.

The scoring in the senior division was very lopsided. Hope had 114, Genoa Central 21, and Fouke 45. The junior division was even worse. Hope had 107, Genoa Central 28, and Fouke had 17.

Library Site Land Advanced

BOSTON (AP) — Directors of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority have cleared the way to sell Authority land in Cambridge as the site for the John F. Kennedy Library.

They authorized release of a 10-acre tract as soon as the state appropriates $6 million to pay the Authority for it. The land will then be turned over to the federal government as a gift from the people of Massachusetts in memory of the late president.

Cubs Banking Heavily on Lefthander

By JACK STEVENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) —

The Chicago Cubs bank heavily this spring on left-hander Ken

Holtzman, a 21-year-old pitcher with less than two years experience in professional baseball.

In 1966, despite playing only part time the first two months

while attending the University of Illinois, he led the team in victories.

The highlight came on Sept.

25, the final game of the season in Wrigley Field when he held the National League champion

Los Angeles Dodgers hitless

through eight innings and beat

Sandy Koufax, 2-1 on a two-hitter.

This spring Holtzman concentrates on baseball and figures to make up the 17 hours left for his degree during the off-season.

"I have a good chance to move up and want to make the most of it," he said, "I missed five or six starts last year because of school."

With the last place Cubs,

Holtzman posted an 11-16 record with a 3.79 earned run average.

Three of his triumphs were at the Dodgers' expense.

Possessing a fine fast ball,

Ken has developed what Ron

Santo describes as "an outstanding curve."

"I learned an awful lot last year," the pitcher said. "Leo

Durocher knows this game inside out and he taught me things I had never dreamed of before."

Umpires and referees have

MICKEY MANTLE is going through some stretching exercises at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., spring home of the New York Yankees. Mickey is switching to first base this year.

By ROGER DOUGHTY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla. — (NEA) —

"Mickey Mantle," observed one

suntanned Florida baseball fan,

"is no Hal Chase, but, for the sake of the Yankees, I hope he doesn't turn out to be another

Joe DiMaggio."

Considering that DiMaggio

once ranked with motherhood, the flag and Frank Sinatra as sacred subjects, the remark might seem strange. But to those who remember Joe's flop at first base, where Mantle is testing his talents

this spring, the meaning is obvious.

Mantle, in his fifth straight year as a $100,000-man with the Yanks, doesn't know if he can cut it at first or not. "How could I know?" he asks. "I never gave it any thought until this year. All I can tell you is that I'll go out and do the best I can."

If Mickey makes it as an infielder it may or may not the experts can't seem to agree reduce the strain on his ailing legs and knees and add a few years to his career. If the Yanks are going to climb out of the cellar, and club president

Mike Burke insists that they are, they'll need Mickey's bat in the lineup as much as possible. Last year, at an unhealthy 34, Mick got into 108

games and managed to slug

23 homers and compile a .288 batting average. Only Joe

Peppitone, who hopefully will vacate first and take Mantle's place in the outfield, hit more homers (31) and nobody on the club had a better batting average.

Mantle jokes easily about the great experiment but some of the barbs have the ring of gallows humor.

"When you hear a guy as great as Mickey joking about using a Dick Stuart glove so he'll have an excuse for a bad

Can't Read or Won't Read?

A bigall Van Buren, who conducts the column known to all readers of The Herald-Dispatch as "Dear Abby", often mixes wisdom with her amusing commentaries on the letters she receives. She did so the other day in replying to a young reader who wanted to know what "one piece of advice" Abby would give to a sixth-grader.

Abby said: "In every library can be found a wealth of knowledge and pleasure. The wisdom of the ages, the best that has been thought and felt and said, awaits you. Sample it. Read for fun, for pleasure, for information! You can live for a little while in another century, in another country - all through books. The man who does not read has no advantage over the man who CANNOT read."

Here is a simple statement that carries a profound thought. Millions of people around the world are so poor (no matter what their natural state may be) because they cannot read. They are denied first-hand news of the world as it is reported from day to day in the press. They are denied the solace and the laughter and sometimes the tears of happenings vicariously experienced with characters so genuinely portrayed that they seem to have the body and breath of reality.

But they are more to be pitied and less to be scorned than the literate man who will not use his gift to enlarge his world and his knowledge of mankind. His library is a treasure-house of the noblest writings of 20 centuries or more, but this man who will read passes by its door with as little comprehension of the riches within as the most illiterate tribesman in darkest Africa.

"The man who does not read has no advantage over the man who CANNOT read," Well said, Dear Abby. We all need to be reminded now and then that thoughts are the most imperishable of all men's work, and that the best of them are held in pleasant captivity between the covers of books.-Huntington (W. News And Gold

Nowadays we take easy and immediate access to the news of the day for granted but before wire and radio communication became universal it often was weeks before the most momentous events became known to most people.

We were reminded of that fact by a recent bulletin of the National Geographic Society. During the Klondike gold rush a citizen bought a newspaper for 50 cents and when he reached Dawson City sold it for 10 ounces of gold, worth $160. A tidy profit indeed. But the purchaser did even better. He rented a hall, charge $1 admission to hear him read an account of Admiral Dewey's naval victory at Manila Bay and made more than $1000.-Houston (Tex.) A City Dweller for the Natural Things Created by Nature

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — no one is as dependent on nature as someone who lives in a big city. When you dwell in a rural area, you can more or less take nature for granted, as a child is unconscious of the beauty of youth.

The unfolding pageantry of cloud and landscape almost escapes attention. There is a surfeit of nature in the country, and many who live there are so accustomed to its daily splendor that they do not feel compelled to pause and worship its wonder anymore than a fish in the sea feels the need to admire the miracle of water.

But when you regularly plod cement pathways and earn a living in manmade huddles of high stone and glass, you get a lonesomeness for natural things that at times overpowers you. Your mind aches for that acre of your own that every human heart aspires to.

You want a place to plant something and harvest it, an animal you can take care of as it helps take care of you: a horse, a cow, a chicken, a pig.

The longer you live in the blue smog of cities the more imperative this hunger for nature becomes. In time your yearning tends to turn you into a pigeon feeder or a squirrel feeder. My pleasure is to feed squirrels. In the well-landscaped tenement where I've paid the landlord's fee for nearly two decades there are about half a dozen squirrels.

My favorite used to be one I nicknamed "Greedy."

Each morning I put half a dozen or so pecans in my pocket, and toss them to the squirrels. Most grab them and scamper off and bury them. "Greedy," however, began to regard me as his personal property. He would chase the other squirrels away, and come up and take the nuts from my hand.

For some days, however, I missed "Greedy," and gave all my pecans to the younger squirrels. I complained about the absence of "Greedy" to my wife and daughter.

Just the other evening I overheard my daughter Tracy say to my wife Frances:

"Mama, you know when I was going across the street to the supermarket last week I saw a squirrel that had been run over. Do you suppose that is the one that Daddy keeps talking about?"

Now there is a vast emptiness in my life, and I feel in a way insecure, missing a companionship I had leaned on.

Of course, I still do have my favorite tree. I don't know what kind it is, but it has wide and wonderful arms that soon will hold up to heaven a canopy of green leaves.

I like to pet its branches when I go by — if I am sure no stranger is looking who might deem me daffy. The night before last, returning with my wife from a Chinese restaurant, I paused at my tree, reached out my hand and was consoled by the feeling of buds ruffling along a brown branch, births of being impatient to burst into spring glory.

"Don't you have a favorite tree of your own?" I asked my wife.

"No," said Frances, "there aren't enough trees here for everybody — so I'll just share yours."

And she put her arm in mine as we walked the last few steps to home.

Daughter of Stalin Flees to the West

ROME (AP) — A police official at the Rome airport said today that Joseph Stalin's 42-year-old daughter Svetlana, who reportedly has defected from the Soviet Union, arrived in Rome a few days ago. The official, who refused to be identified by name, said she probably was still in the Italian capital.

Sources in Washington said Thursday that Miss Stalin left the Soviet Union via India and went to the U.S. Embassy in New Delhi. These reports said she later went to Rome.

The State Department said it had no knowledge of the matter, and U.S., Soviet, and Indian officials in New Delhi, Rome and Moscow all disclaimed any knowledge.

The Rome airport news service said it was told by a police official assigned to the international arrival and departure terminal that "a person who arrived" (Miss Stalin's) arrival" was due in Rome eventually.

"Only after that time will the entire matter be made public," the unidentified police official said.

The public information officer of the U.S. Embassy in Rome, Gordon A. Ewing, told newsmen, "We have no information" on the initial reports from unofficial sources in Washington.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman said "we have had hundreds of telephone calls, but we know nothing."

Marino La Mela, head of Rome's police office for foreigners, told newsmen: "Our checks have turned up nothing."

A check in Moscow also produced negative results. A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy there said he had no comment or information on Miss Stalin. A Soviet spokesman declined to say anything.

Mrs. Powell Will Have to Go to Work

By LOUIS UCHITELLE
SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell's estranged wife, living off her family in Puerto Rico, says she'll "have to go to work eventually — it's hard making ends meet."

While her husband fights to regain his seat in Congress, she and their 4-year-old son live quietly, trying to plan a future.

Yvette Diago Powell is slim and gracefully attractive, with streaks of gray through her dark hair. She does not often appear in public and usually can be reached only by making an appointment through her lawyer.

Then she speaks softly and frankly about her financial problems and her unsuccessful efforts to contact Powell and discuss their future.

"There are no communications between us or our lawyers," she says. Mrs. Powell does not speak harshly of her husband. She still wears the big diamond engagement ring and diamond wedding band which Powell gave her when they were married in December, 1960.

Will she file for divorce? "It's very hard to answer that question," she says. "I always try to think in terms of what is best for my child. And everything is confusing now. The first thing is to get in contact with Adam and get some answers."

Mrs. Powell returned to Puerto Rico from Washington in 1962, shortly before the birth of her son, Adam Diago. Since then she has lived in the six-room seashore home in suburban Cerro Gordo which Powell built after their marriage and later transferred to one of Mrs. Powell's uncles.

The Harlem congressman commuted frequently from the mainland and for a while tried to enter Puerto Rican politics. His wife and child last saw him in September, 1965, when they drove him to San Juan International Airport after one of his last visits.

"My son talks constantly about his father," Mrs. Powell said. "He wants to know why he isn't back from work and why the plane doesn't come back."

"Whenever he sees his father on television or in the newspaper," he told newsmen, "asked him to tell me. But he is too young to understand about nonpayment later he replied: 'I doubt it very seriously.'"

Last month, Mrs. Powell told the House select committee investigating her husband that she had received some support from the Indian payments from Powell. These Embassy in the Italian capital ended in November, she said.

The following month she received her last salary check from her job as a congressional employee on her husband's staff.

Military Told to Take Over China

By JOHN RODERICK
TOKYO (AP) — Chinese Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung has ordered the military to take over his faltering campaign to regain power from President Liu Shao-chi, it was reported today.

Speaking indirectly — through his theoretical journal, Red Flag — Mao told the army to take part "from top to bottom" in the three-way alliances now being formed to seize power.

Red Flag, distributed by the New China News Agency, made it plain that Mao expects the military to play leading roles in these organizations which he hopes will wrest control of every aspect of Chinese administration.

The 2.5 million - man army actively plunged into Mao's nationwide purge — the great proletarian cultural revolution — early in January. Resisted in many areas, it has not been uniformly loyal. Revolts have been reported in Sinkiang, Inner Mongolia, Szechuan Province and Tibet.

In the places so far claimed for Mao, the army has swiftly taken over leadership, then acted as policeman for the initially shaky Maoist committees challenging the Liu administration.

Air Crash Second in Five Days

By DONALD L. BANDY
URBANA, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's second airliner crash in five days — the latest possibly caused by a collision with a private plane — carried 26 persons to their death Thursday.

The DC9 Trans World Airlines jet disintegrated in flames as it approached Dayton's Municipal Airport for a landing. The private plane, a twin engine Beechcraft, fell from the sky at the same time like a wounded bird.

Only moments before, veteran airline pilot Karl B. Kohlstatt of Chicago had been warned of "unknown traffic" in his range by the Federal Aviation Agency.

Wreckage of the airliner and bodies of those aboard — 21 passengers and four crew members — were strewn through woods and gullies nine miles west of here.

The private plane and its pilot, Cyrus H. Burgstahler, 54, of Detroit, fell two miles away.

The crash was 45 miles south of where a Lake Central Airlines turbojet went down in a snow-sleet storm Sunday night with 38 aboard. All were killed.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, still investigating that tragedy, quickly turned to search for the cause of the second one. Some members of the investigating team sent here came from the scene of the earlier crash.

"We don't know what happened yet," said Ed Slattery of the CAB at the scene, "No one saw it."

The Federal Aviation Agency refused to say there had been a collision in the air. But the DC9 had been in contact with the Federal Aviation Agency traffic control at Dayton by radar at 11:54 a.m., and Burgstahler by radio with the Springfield Airport, 20 miles to the south, at 11:50 a.m.

The weather was clear and bright.

U.S. Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, Urbana newspaper and radio station owner, said he had learned there were indications FAA radar had shown the planes on a collision course.

Kohlstatt, 40, had been with the airline since 1956. Burgstahler likewise was a veteran pilot. His employer at Detroit said he had some 30 years of flying experience.

"He was considered a top pilot of small craft," said George Tann, president of the Congress Tool & Die Division of Tann Corp.

Burgstahler, sales manager for the company, was flying alone from Detroit to Springfield on a business trip. Tann said he had been advised Burgstahler had contacted the Springfield Airport only two minutes before the crash to reserve a car.

Spring is the traditional time for cleaning (You know the "clean the closets" binge every homemaker has) and fixing up in and around the house. It is suggested that this year we make it a Family Affair when it comes to finding and removing hazards around the house. Let the youngsters play like their favorite detective character and hunt the hazards. Then, adults can fix or

Increase Fish Production With Fertilize

Would you like to increase the production of fish in your pond four to ten times? If so, fertilize.

Spring is here. Pond and lake waters are warming up and fish are beginning to stir.

Fish have to eat like all animals. The most economical way to supply a food source for fish is by pond fertilization. Now is the time to start. Bream make practically all their growth in March, April and May. Bass will be spawning in April and need plenty of food to bring them into the spawning season in good shape. Channel catfish begin to feed vigorously by the middle of March.

Fertilize ponds in Hempstead County Soil and Water Conservation District and vicinity by using 100 pounds per acre of 8-2 fertilizer or its equivalent. Apply this amount at ten day intervals until a good "bloom" is secured. When the "bloom" begins to thin out give the pond another shot of fertilizer. Maintain this program until a heavy frost in the fall. Most ponds in this vicinity also need lime. Four times a year place a 50 pound sack of hydrated lime for each acre of water.

Don't make hard work out of fertilizing your pond. Place the fertilizer on a platform that is placed just under the water at a convenient location or place the sack in shallow water and slit it open. Wind and wave action will distribute the fertilizer throughout the pond.

Fish don't eat fertilizer - the plant food nutrients stimulate the growth of small plants in the water. Aquatic bugs feed on the plant life and furnish food for the fish.

If you will contact the Soil Conservation Service after you have fertilized your pond two times they will check your water and outline a program for the remainder of the year.

Steel Plants Near Hanoi Hit 2nd Time

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON (AP) — Thailand-based American bombers attacked North Vietnam's biggest steel making plant today for the second straight day, the U.S. military command announced.

A spokesman said 14 flights — about 42 planes — hammered the Thai Nguyen steel plant 38 miles north of Hanoi, North Vietnam's capital. The American pilots sighted Communist MIGs during the forays but no engagements were reported immediately.

The plant covering an area of 2.5 square miles — was hit Friday for the first time in the war as American fliers expanded their targets to intensify air blows against the north.

In the latest raid, pilots reported "all bombs on target" but there was no further assessment of damage at once.

In the South, only 14 miles from Saigon, a battalion of helicopter-lifted U.S. infantrymen clashed today in fierce fighting Saturday with a Viet Cong force.

In the battle, still raging late in the afternoon, U.S. artillerymen accidentally fired a round into their own troops and killed four American soldiers and wounded eight, a U.S. military spokesman said.

Three U.S. Army helicopters were hit by enemy fire, the spokesman said, but managed to fly to safety although four aboard were wounded.

The U.S. Command said the Communists have added two more powerful rockets to their arsenal in South Vietnam and disclosed that American planes raided a large ammunition storage area near Haiphong Friday in addition to the previously reported raid on the Thai Nguyen steel making plant north of Hanoi. Both targets were hit for the first time in the war, a spokesman said, as the American fliers expanded their targets in North Vietnam.

Windsor Has Colleagues Sweating

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Rep. Gayle Windsor of Little Rock said Thursday his statement that he was offered $1,000 to vote for the Hot Springs gambling bill was not meant to cast a reflection on the legislature. At least two members of the legislature said it did, however.

Rep. Eugene Still of Blytheville told the House that Windsor's statement insinuated that other legislators had received similar offers. Sen. Oscar Alagood told the Senate the statement made it appear everyone who sponsored or voted for the bill had been bought by gambling interests.

"He has indicted 135 members of this Arkansas legislature," Alagood said. "I want you to know, and I want the world to know, that I have never received so much as a soft drink in return for my vote on any bill."

"One of our colleagues who claims to have been offered a bribe, and I seriously doubt it since he refused to name the offerer, has insinuated that he feels other members of the House were made similar offers," Still said.

"I highly resent the implication — for my colleagues as well as myself. I have heard his explanation to this august body, but no apology for his insinuations."

The statement was of great concern to Speaker Sterling R. Cockrill Jr. of Little Rock, who asked Windsor to make an explanation on the House floor.

Windsor reiterated that he was made the offer by someone who he said was not connected with government in the corridor outside the House after he had gone into the chamber to get the key to his voting machine. Windsor said he was absent from the House Wednesday and Thursday because of illness and had gone to the chamber Friday before the vote on the bill only long enough to get the key.

"The beauty of the heart is the expression of good feelings and a sense of good within. Beauty is firmly based on good and without good there could be no true loveliness. Many are not beautiful because they are just sponges. They absorb beauty, but there is never any expression of it. Keats said, 'A thing of beauty is a joy forever.' That is true, but only is that beauty is expressed over and over again. That is the kind of beauty the Psalmist wanted when he wrote, 'Let the beauty of the Lord God be upon us; and establish Thou the work of our hands; establish thou it.'"

Big Bombers to Use the Thai Bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Official acknowledgment that U.S. war planes are striking North Vietnam from Thailand

Admission by officials here and in Bangkok that Thailand has been a springboard for air attacks on North Vietnam comes about two years after those operations started.

But the officials said nothing about air strikes from Thailand against Communist infiltration routes and other Red targets in neighboring Laos.

Up to 75 per cent of U.S. Air Force strikes against North Vietnam are understood to be mounted from Thailand. Communists have threatened countermeasures against the bases, but none has been attacked.

U.S. authorities would have spoken publicly sooner about use of Thai bases for air operations against North Vietnam, but they deferred to Thai objections.

Pentagon officials speculated that the Thais removed their objections because they finally are convinced that the United States intends to stay in Thailand and defend it, if necessary, from any Communist attack.

Sources said no final agreement has yet been reached with the Thais on stationing B52s in Thailand. But they indicated this is only a matter of time.

A new base at Sattahip, about 75 miles south of Bangkok, has an 11,500-foot runway which is capable of handling the heavy jets.

Air Force officers in Vietnam have told reporters that Gen. William C. Westmoreland, top U.S. commander in Vietnam, has been pressing for more B52 strikes against Communist positions in South Vietnam.

Hammerschmidt Bill Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Paul Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., introduced a bill in the House of Representatives Thursday that would make the Buffalo River in Arkansas a national river.

Sens. J. William Fulbright and John L. McClellan, both Democrats, have introduced similar measures.
